Facts about filtered water

Tap water contains a whole raft of impurities that we don't want in our bodies.

It tastes better than tap water

Chlorine plays a crucial role in keeping our tap water supply clean and free from bacteria and viruses... but it's not something you need to be consuming.

It's good for the environment

Plastic from bottled water is damaging our environment. The production of the plastic uses fossil fuels and energy and the bottles end up in landfill, or worse – in our waterways, causing harm to marine life.

Filtered water is good for your gut

In order to balance your gut, you need to stay hydrated. Chlorine can have a massive negative impact on your gut flora. Filtered water removes chlorine.

Charcoal is used to filter water

Carbon/charcoal filtration is one of the best. It uses a process of adsorption (as opposed to absorption) to chemically bind the impurities in the water to the charcoal.
